VIVONET POISED TO ROCKET IN 2007

VANCOUVER, BC - February 15, 2007 – Vivonet Inc. has been named on the 'Ready to Rocket' list for a second consecutive year. The "Ready to Rocket 25" list names twenty-five private B.C. companies who are best positioned to capitalize on the information technology (I.T.) trends that will contribute to faster growth than the I.T. sector as a whole.

Geoffrey Hansen of Rocket Builders outlines some of the I.T. trends that companies on the 2007 'Ready to Rocket' list are embracing, "As we predicted last year, Software-as-a-Service (SaaS), Wireless, Security and Customer Relationship technologies were key drivers of significant growth."

"Our success is attributed to having identified the unmet needs of our customers and the market in general. There's a need in the market place for affordable software that allows small and medium sized business to have the same tools as the large, more established business. That's where SaaS models akin to Vivonet's truly excel," notes Ryan Volberg, CEO of Vivonet. In fact, even the largest, publicly traded enterprises have begun the move to SaaS solutions because the performance they need is there and the total cost of ownership (how much the solution really costs beyond the initial purchase price) positively impacts their bottom line," said Ryan.

The majority of companies on the 'Ready to Rocket' list experienced greater than 50% revenue growth last year with Vivonet experiencing 600% revenue growth. "The growth rates of these private companies is impressive when you consider that the I.T. sector only grew at 5% in 2006." said Reg Nordman, Managing Partner at Rocket Builders.

"We look at buyer trends and other market forces to predict revenue growth in the information technology sector. Vivonet is bringing the right technology to market to capitalize on these trends." said Reg Nordman, Managing Partner at Rocket Builders.
